HIGH VALUE HEMP POLICY

What it Means for Stakeholders and Palliser Clients

Palliser has been insuring hemp for years, so it makes sense that stakeholders have turned to us to protect farmers. We can insure any company who has an insurable interest in the crop, from innovator to market distribution, including the local grower. We were first in the industry to design a specific industrial hemp product — that innovation shows in how we work and the results we provide for our clients. We specialize in adjusting hemp, and have many years of experience.

Why Palliser?

Established Procedures

With adjustment procedures already in place, our experts have you covered

Our established processes have resulted in a long list of satisfied customers over many years.

Experience & Innovation

First to design a hemp policy and decades of experience

Our improved risk management strategies, product innovation and focus on agricultural connections make us the best choice.

Strong Network

Large network of adjusters

We take on the work of educating agents and farmers so that they understand the potential risk and reward of growing and insuring a high value crop.

Our new high value hemp program accommodates the varying value levels of hemp across the country, and is custom designed based on individual requirements and geographic location. We're innovating with you.

We set the right expectations, every time. Through close communication with agents, we pass on information and provide them with essential assets to better equip farmers. It's easy to see why we have a large and trusted network of agents.

The Need to Know
